Thank goodness the Board member didn't happen into a disaffected officer. By all means, feel free to contact Kyle. I'll give him a heads up that you will be in touch. We have discussed the underlying issue anyway, so it won't be a surprise. I know, that following the conversation you and I had, he started tracking location of response (field v. station.)

Enjoy the snow the tomorrow. Mid 70s in Nevada.

I've learned from Fred that a Williams board member who owns a residence in town arranged last weekend to be shown around the current station and while he was there asked the officer (I don't know who it was, but I think not Kyle) what he thought about the move. That person's reported to have said that mainly he's extremely happy to finally be moving into a modern facility, that he's wistful (probably not the word he used) about being out of the center of town but apparently didn't think it was a huge deal.

It sounds like that went fine, but it makes me want to take up your offer for me to come chat with Kyle. I don't expect to hear anything different, but I want my research to have been as on-the-ground as what happened this weekend.

Should I just email him or do you want to broker that?

Happy travels.
